

Hamish Brown MBE is the UK's leading authority in the offences of stalking and harassment. Recently retired from the Metropolitan police he spent most of his career in the CID and has vast experience in the investigation of rape, murder, contract killing and other serious crime investigations.

Hamish is an experienced public speaker and regularly lectures nationally and internationally. His most recent engagements include; guest speaker at the Association of Threat Assessment Professionals (ATAP) annual conference in Los Angeles; members of United States Congress; European threat management seminars in Brussels and Nice.

He has also spoken internationally to the entertainment industry, FBI, an international stalking symposium in Germany, and to an international conference in Berlin comprising of senior representatives from 37 countries, the United Nations and European Commission.

Hamish runs his own busy consultancy and advisory company for individuals and industry and is an experienced interviewee on TV and radio as a crime expert. He is the author of guides to investigators and the public on stalking and harassment.

He has also recently undertaken work on anti social behaviour as well as working with the Probation Service on prolific offenders in society.

In 2003 Hamish was awarded the MBE for his work on stalking and harassment.