

Trevor Kennett is one of the countries leading experts in tackling anti social behaviour and an Associate Fellow of public policy and consultation for Anglia Ruskin University, Cambridge. Until recently he was Chief Officer for Crime & Anti Social Behaviour Services in an East London local authority and has vast experience in a range of Public Safety issues associated with Government Agencies, Police Services, Strategic and Local Authorities. Trevor is now Chief Executive of Safety Net Associates Limited, a private sector consultancy dedicated to offering independent public safety expertise.

As Chief Officer in Newham, Trevor was responsible for over 200 staff running a total revenue budget of over £10 million concerning a jointly managed Police, Wardens and Parks Constabulary team, a Victim & Witness Community Team, ASB Investigations, a Domestic Violence & Hate Crime Unit, Street Scene Enforcement and a cutting-edge CCTV control centre, as well as a strategic community safety and emergency planning units.

As Chief Officer in the host borough for the 2012 Olympics Trevor led the Olympic community safety, anti social behaviour and emergency planning and is still advising the authority in that capacity.

Trevor is one of a few experts in Britain with an outstanding track record in tackling crime and anti-social behaviour chosen for the governments' national 'Respect Squad' advising local authorities, police chiefs, councillors and MPs to take effective action against persistent cases of lawlessness and disorder. He was also appointed by the Prime Minister as a national Anti Social Behaviour Ambassador to promote the use of powers and to highlight best practice around the country. He also Assists the Home Office as an expert practitioner in the 'Together & Respect Academies' and recently oversaw the training of 10,000 community safety practitioners throughout the country and has mentored a number of Crime & Disorder Reduction Partnerships to improve their performance.

Considered one of the countries leading experts relating to nuisance fireworks Trevor has led national workshops to develop practitioners understanding of the law relating to tackling nuisance firework use. Trevor also has vast experience in the operational and technical use of Closed Circuit Television (CCTV) and has given expert evidence on behalf of the Police and Crown Prosecution Service in court in that capacity.

Trevor is an experienced and entertaining public speaker to both specialist and lay audiences. In demand nationally and internationally, over the last 3 years he has lectured at conferences in Belgium, France, and the UK. Media work includes advising on factual news programmes including 'BBC News 24', 'Meridian News' and 'London Tonight'. Trevor has also appeared at numerous press conferences including the 'Forest Gate Terrorist Incident' and is an experienced TV and radio interviewee.

For further information and availability please contact the Crimespeakers office on 01737 642424 or e-mail enquiries@crimespeakers.com .